INTRODUCTION

This Advanced Technical Pre Revision Question Bank contains 15 exam standard questions all with answers updated to Finance Act 2025. This question bank forms an important part of your preparation for the examination - question practice is the key to passing exams.

As you answer the questions you may refer to either a hard copy or on-screen version of the CTA Tax Tables 2026 and your own personalised version of the approved online legislation.

Using this question bank

All the CTA Advanced Technical exams are 3.5 hours in length.

We suggest you allocate 2 minutes per mark which allows for 10 minutes initial reading time.

10 mark question = 20 minutes

15 mark question = 30 minutes

20 mark question = 40 minutes

You should attempt each question as if you were in the real exam. Try to avoid just reading the answers to questions - it is all too easy to nod as you read the answer saying “yes I know that point, yes I understand that advice given” - the test is would you have actually put those points in your answer? You won't find this out unless you type up the answers and we recommend you do this using the on-screen version of this QB. Ensuring you type up “proper” answers also gives you a good idea of how long an exam standard answer will take you to produce.

Preparing your answers

Questions set on the Advanced Technical papers do not require a specific format of answer - all questions will require a direct answer (rather than a letter to a client or an email to the tax partner). Requirements will start with words like “Explain”, “Discuss”, “Compare” and “Calculate”.

There may be scenarios where there is no single correct answer or where the answer is not definitive. You will be expected to make recommendations as to actions which should be taken by the subject of the question.

You are expected to produce full and reasoned answers sufficient to demonstrate your knowledge and application in order to gain the available marks. Brief bullet points are unlikely to be sufficient.

Key presentation considerations include spacing your answer out, cross referencing your workings and using subheadings and short paragraphs.

The CIOT do not award “presentation and higher skills” (PHS) marks on individual questions nor will they form part of the 100 marks available on a paper. Instead, when they carry out their normal review of a script that is just below a pass, up to two bonus PHS marks per paper can be awarded which could therefore boost a candidate from a fail to a pass.

When awarding these bonus marks, the CIOT have stated they will consider:

- The accuracy of spelling and grammar.
- Whether full sentences have been used where appropriate (in some cases appropriately detailed lists may be appropriate, for example setting out the conditions for a relief to apply).
- Whether answers flow well and are presented in a logical order.
- Whether conclusions have been reached where it is appropriate to expect a conclusion.

Reviewing your answers

It is essential to read through your answer when you have finished typing it (within the time allocated for that question). We thought it might be useful at this stage to pass on some tips about how to review your answers effectively – before you look at the model answer.

Remember the first thing the marker will do is read your answer through as a whole – what overall impression are you giving of your ability? A good question to ask yourself is would the reader pay money for your advice? Have you put the marker in a good mood as soon as they see your script or are they going to be dreading marking what you have handed in?

You may be able to make some small corrections at this review stage – you may find you have missed out a vital word such as “not” or you may at this stage think of another point or two to add while reading through your answer. This approach could increase your marks much more effectively than carrying on with the point you were making before you stopped to do this final review.

Reviewing the model answer

In the advanced technical papers, it is quite likely that there is no single right answer. The model answer is only one possible solution. You may well have included valid points which are not included in the model answer. Review critically both your answer and the model answer. Are there points in the model answer which you could have included in your answer to get extra marks? Are there points you have included which, with the benefit of hindsight, you should have left out?

10	£925,001 - £1,500,000
12	£1,500,001+

- Notes: (1) The basic rates are increased by 5% (the 'higher rates') where the purchase is of an additional residential property for individuals. Companies and trusts pay the additional 5% on all purchases of residential properties, subject to Note 2 below.
- (2) Companies (and certain other entities) pay 17% on purchases of residential property valued > £500,000 (subject to exceptions).
- (3) First-time buyers purchasing a single dwelling as their only/main residence may benefit from a reduced rate. (This includes qualifying shared ownership properties.) SDLT will be 0% on the first £300,000, for a property bought for a maximum £500,000 (5% on the excess up to £500,000). No relief is available for a property over £500,000.
- (4) Non-resident individuals and companies will pay an additional 2% surcharge for purchases of residential property. This is in addition to the basic rate, the higher rate (where applicable, in Note 1), and the 17% rate (where applicable, in Note 2).

QUESTIONS

1. Thissop Ltd is a private company registered and operating in the UK. During 2025/26, it encountered some financial and operating difficulties, including losing a number of payroll staff. Most of the payroll activity was left to Josh, the payroll and administration apprentice at Thissop Ltd.

In November 2026, the payroll manager conducted a review of Josh's work and found the following:

- 1) A number of payments of tax and NICs were made late to HMRC via PAYE during the year. The late payments occurred in respect of the May, August, September, November and December pay periods in 2025 and also the February 2026 pay period. All the returns were, however, submitted on time.
- 2) Bonuses, which were paid to the five directors in December 2025, have not been reported on their P60s. This has only come to light because HMRC opened an enquiry into the return of Steve Simons, the Managing Director, and Steve informed Thissop Ltd that HMRC had spotted the error. Josh has confirmed that he realised they were missing but didn't know what to do about it, so he just left them out. The tax and NICs for the bonuses have still not been paid over to HMRC yet as Thissop Ltd is having a bit of a cashflow crisis. The payroll manager does not expect to be able to make the payments until January 2028.

Requirement:

Explain the potential exposure to penalties for Thissop Ltd and comment on what Josh should have done when he discovered the errors in relation to the directors' bonuses. (10)

2. Alpha plc is the UK subsidiary of a multinational group headquartered in Sweden.

It is proposed to second Astrid, one of the directors of the Swedish parent company, to the UK with effect from 6 April 2026. Astrid will become the Managing Director for Alpha plc on a part-time basis and it is expected that she will remain in this role for at least three years.

It is anticipated that she will normally work on Tuesdays and Wednesdays in the UK, flying in on Tuesday morning, staying in a hotel on Tuesday night and then flying home on Wednesday evening. She will continue to have responsibilities at group level and will work on group matters in Sweden on the other days of the week. Except for work, she will not spend any time in the UK. She has not previously been tax resident in the UK.

Alpha plc will bear the cost of Astrid's return flights to the UK, as well as all accommodation and subsistence while she is in the UK. Astrid's husband and children will remain in Sweden.

Requirement:

Explain the UK Income Tax consequences for Astrid in relation to her secondment to the UK. (15)

3. Ayushi Sharma works for HI International plc ('HII'), an aerospace company based in Fleetwood. She joined HII as part of their graduate intake on 1 July 2025. Between finishing her degree at her local university in Lancaster and starting work at HII, she worked increased hours at a part-time job she had at a local multiplex cinema. The 'student loan deductions' box had been ticked on her P45 by the cinema payroll staff. Ayushi has confirmed that her student loan was taken out in September 2021.

Her starting salary at HII is £22,000 and HII also pays for her private medical insurance at a yearly premium of £600, a benefit which it payrolls. Ayushi received a 'welcome payment' of £1,000 with her first salary payment. She is paid monthly.

In September 2025, she complains to the payroll department because she had money deducted from her July pay as a student loan deduction, and she did not think she earned enough for that to happen. She thought HII had noticed their mistake when no deduction was made in August, but would like to know when she will get a refund of the money deducted in July.

Requirement:

Comment, with reasons, on whether Ayushi's complaint is justified. (10)

4. Samphire Ltd is a recently established company operating as a facilities management agency in the UK. It helps clients fill staff vacancies and cover temporary roles, as well as providing facilities management services for short-term or long-term projects.

A PAYE scheme has already been set up in relation to the directors and the office staff. Samphire Ltd is aware that there may be a need to deduct tax and national insurance contributions from the workers that are provided to fulfil clients' requirements. However, the payroll department is unclear as to whether and for whom, they should be doing this. A few of the people Samphire Ltd has placed with clients have refused to fill in starter questionnaires, saying that the PAYE scheme won't apply to them. These are:

- Alison Eddowes: placed by Samphire Ltd with a local hotel for five days as a temporary receptionist
- Dermot Flynn: a close-up magician provided by Samphire Ltd to a local theme park as they wanted someone to entertain the queues. His contract is for three months
- Dilnott Ltd: who provided ten of their employees to be stewards at the four day beer festival this week
- Mohammed Khalid: an IT specialist engaged to install wi-fi and point-of-sale facilities for the beer festival

In each case, Samphire Ltd has a contract with the client to find a person to fit their requirements. Samphire Ltd finds the appropriate worker(s), invoices the client for the worker's services and then pays the worker or the provider of the workers directly.

Requirement:

Explain how Samphire Ltd decides which workers should be brought into the PAYE scheme and why. Comment on whether Samphire Ltd has an obligation to tell HMRC about those workers it does not deduct tax and NICs from. (15)

5. A new non-executive director, Leo Vincent, is being appointed to the main board of Bigelow plc, a UK incorporated company.

Leo is a non-UK national and is tax resident in a country which taxes worldwide income and has neither a double tax treaty nor a reciprocal social security agreement with the UK.

Leo currently holds no other UK directorships but has done so in the past five years. He has not previously been UK tax resident.

The intention is that Leo will attend Board meetings and other committee meetings in Bigelow plc's London office and will also travel to other parts of the UK and overseas locations as required. It is expected that he will spend 15 days in the UK in 2026/27, 39 days in 2027/28, and around 55 days per year thereafter.

Leo will pay for his own accommodation and other expenses in London. His air fares to and from the UK and travel and subsistence expenses associated with visits outside London will be picked up directly or reimbursed to Leo by Bigelow plc.

Requirement:

Explain whether Leo Vincent will be liable to UK tax and national insurance contributions.

(15)

6. Aeratech UK Ltd ('AUK') is a private company incorporated in the UK. AUK has always traded from within the UK, but recently decided to take advantage of new trading opportunities by setting up a subsidiary in Yeswain, Aeratech Yeswain Ltd ('AY').

AY is going to need short-term support from the UK based workforce of AUK. AUK is prepared to offer some of its existing UK based employees secondments to AY in Yeswain. Whilst in Yeswain, these staff will help train the staff of AY. After the secondments, the staff will return to their UK duties.

The proposals are:

- 1) Staff will be seconded to AY for 18 months at a time. Start dates for each secondment will be 1 January 2026 or 1 July 2026.
- 2) Seconded staff will work full-time for AY in Yeswain, have no UK duties and will be paid in Yeswain Dollars (Y$) by AY.
- 3) All benefits and expenses of the Yeswain secondment, as listed below, will be arranged and paid for by AY.
- 4) Expenses of travel will include the costs of travel between the UK and Yeswain at the start and the end of the 18 month secondment and will also cover one trip per month between the UK and Yeswain, either for seconded staff or their relatives.
- 5) Yeswain has no public health system, so private medical insurance will be provided throughout the secondment.
- 6) A rented apartment will be provided for the use of each seconded employee and their family throughout the secondment.
- 7) It is anticipated that employees owning homes in the UK may wish to know the UK tax implications of any disposal of the property while they are on secondment.
- 8) AUK has confirmed that all staff to be seconded are currently classified as resident within the UK. None are qualifying new residents for the purposes of the foreign income and gains regime.
- 9) Yeswain is situated outside the EEA. It has no UK double tax treaty and no reciprocal social security agreement with the UK.

Requirement:

Explain the UK tax implications of the proposed overseas secondments. You do not need to discuss national insurance and you do not need to discuss the employer reporting obligations. (20)

7. Fibrotech Ltd ('Fibrotech') is a technology company recently set up in the UK by its parent, Fibrotech Group Ltd. Fibrotech Group Ltd is based in Ireland.

The intention is that Fibrotech will develop the group's activities within the UK. To oversee the initial phase of the project, Fibrotech Group Ltd's Sales Manager, Kieran Clarke, will relocate to London from 6 April 2026 for a period which is expected to last two years.

It is likely that additional support and sales staff will be seconded to the UK from Head Office in Ireland for short periods while the London business is being established. Some employees will be seconded to the UK for two months; others will be seconded to the UK for four months.

Although Kieran Clarke will spend most of his time in the UK, he will also spend at least two months each year visiting customers in Europe. This is not anticipated to include any time in Ireland.

An extract of the UK/Ireland DTA is attached. It has already been confirmed that for the duration of the secondment, Kieran will be non-resident in Ireland under both the domestic rules and the terms of the DTA.

Requirement:

Comment on any UK income tax and national insurance issues arising for Fibrotech Ltd from the various secondments. (20)

EXTRACT FROM UK / IRELAND DOUBLE TAXATION AGREEMENT

ARTICLE 4 - Fiscal Domicile

- (1) For the purposes of this Convention, the term 'resident of a Contracting State' means, subject to the provisions of paragraphs (2) and (3) of this Article, any person who, under the law of that State, is liable to taxation therein by reason of his domicile, residence, place of management or any other criterion of a similar nature; the term does not include any individual who is liable to tax in that Contracting State only if he derives income from sources therein. The terms 'resident of the United Kingdom' and 'resident of the Republic of Ireland' shall be construed accordingly.
- (2) Where by reason of the provisions of paragraph (1) of this Article an individual is a resident of both Contracting States, then his status shall be determined in accordance with the following rules:
 - (a) he shall be deemed to be a resident of the Contracting State in which he has a permanent home available to him. If he has a permanent home available to him in both Contracting States, he shall be deemed to be a resident of the Contracting State with which his personal and economic relations are closer (centre of vital interests);
 - (b) if the Contracting State in which he has his centre of vital interests cannot be determined, or if he has not a permanent home available to him in either Contracting State, he shall be deemed to be a resident of the Contracting State in which he has a habitual abode;
 - (c) if he has a habitual abode in both Contracting States or in neither of them, he shall be deemed to be a resident of the Contracting State of which he is a national;

- (d) if he is a national of both Contracting States or of neither of them, the competent authorities of the Contracting States shall settle the question by mutual agreement.

ARTICLE 15 - Employments

- (1) Subject to the provisions of Article 17 and 18, salaries, wages and other similar remuneration derived by a resident of a Contracting State in respect of an employment shall be taxable only in that State unless the employment is exercised in the other Contracting State. If the employment is so exercised, such remuneration as is derived therefrom may be taxed in that other State.
- (2) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (1) of this Article, remuneration derived by a resident of a Contracting State in respect of an employment exercised in the other Contracting State shall be taxable only in the first-mentioned State if:
- (a) the recipient is present in the other State for a period or periods not exceeding in the aggregate 183 days in the fiscal year concerned; and
 - (b) the remuneration is paid by, or on behalf of, an employer who is not a resident of the other State; and
 - (c) the remuneration is not borne by a permanent establishment or a fixed base which the employer has in the other State.
- (3) In relation to remuneration of a director of a company derived from the company the preceding provisions of this Article shall apply as if the remuneration were remuneration of an employee in respect of an employment and as if references to "employer" were references to the company.

8. Knowle plc is the UK head of a travel agency group. It currently has subsidiaries in five European companies. It is considering setting up a new business in Portugal and has asked the UK marketing director, Selwyn, to move to Lisbon to open a new office on 6 April 2026. As he is not sure how well this will turn out, Selwyn has agreed to a three year secondment in the first instance. This will be on the following basis:
- Selwyn's wife will accompany him, but his two children will remain in the UK at university
 - Knowle plc will provide accommodation for Selwyn and his wife in Lisbon, but Selwyn will be responsible for any tax payable in respect of this
 - The family will retain their home in the UK as one of the sons still lives at home, and Selwyn will stay there as and when he returns to the UK
 - Selwyn will make frequent work trips to the UK, for around one week per month. All travel connected with these UK trips will be paid for by Knowle plc
 - Selwyn's UK trips will enable him to update the board on Knowle's progress in Portugal, and also to keep in touch with his UK-based team who will still report to him

Selwyn has never lived outside the UK before.

An extract from the Double Taxation Agreement between the UK and Portugal is set out below.

Requirement:

Explain the UK income tax and social security implications of the arrangements agreed between Knowle plc and Selwyn. There is no need to consider tax equalisation.

EXTRACT FROM UK / PORTUGAL DOUBLE TAXATION AGREEMENTARTICLE 4 - Residence

- (1) For the purposes of this Convention, the term 'resident of a Contracting State' means any person who, under the law of that State, is liable to taxation therein by reason of his domicile, residence, place of management or any other criterion of a similar nature, and the terms 'resident of the United Kingdom' and 'resident of Portugal' shall be construed accordingly.
- (2) Where by reason of the provisions of paragraph (1) an individual is a resident of both Contracting States, then his status shall be determined in accordance with the following rules:
 - (a) He shall be deemed to be a resident of the Contracting State in which he has a permanent home available to him. If he has a permanent home available to him in both Contracting States, he shall be deemed to be a resident of the Contracting State with which his personal and economic relations are closest (centre of vital interests);
 - (b) If the Contracting State in which he has his centre of vital interests cannot be determined, or if he has not a permanent home available to him in either Contracting State, he shall be deemed to be a resident of the Contracting State in which he has a habitual abode;
 - (c) If he has a habitual abode in both Contracting States or in neither of them, he shall be deemed to be a resident of the Contracting State of which he is a national;
 - (d) If he is a national of both Contracting States or of neither of them, the competent authorities of the Contracting States shall settle the question by mutual agreement.

9. BreakOut Ltd is a UK private company recently set up by Harry Markham, a serial entrepreneur with experience in the leisure industry. BreakOut Ltd operates a virtual reality escape room centre which Harry expects to be very successful. Currently there are 100,000 £1 ordinary shares in issue, all of which are held by Harry. To ensure growth, he wishes to incentivise the full-time director, Daisy Lord, by offering her 5,000 newly issued £1 ordinary shares. The shares are not subject to restrictions and their current market value for tax purposes is estimated at £5 per share. Harry hopes to sell the company to a leisure chain in about three years' time when the shares may be worth £15 each.

Harry is considering three alternatives:

- 1) Daisy is offered the shares immediately at a price of £2.50 per share and the company makes a loan to Daisy to subscribe for the shares. The loan would be interest-free and would be repayable when the shares are sold.
- 2) Daisy is granted an option to purchase the shares at £5 each. The option would only be exercisable if there is to be a sale of the company. This would be achieved by the option agreement providing that they could be exercised either on an actual sale of the company, or by Board resolution immediately before a sale if the Board believed that such a sale was likely to take place.
- 3) Daisy is granted an option on the same terms as in 2) above, except that it would be a qualifying Enterprise Management Incentives option.

Requirement:

Explain, with supporting calculations as appropriate, the tax and reporting implications for BreakOut Ltd and Daisy of the proposed alternatives. (20)

10. Duck Ltd is a UK based private company specialising in the manufacture and retail of hot tubs. In October 2026, an opportunity arises to acquire a rival business. Two of the seven members of Duck Ltd’s senior management team (Bob Note aged 58 and Marion Jones aged 42) do not believe that this opportunity will be beneficial in the long term. Instead, they think that Duck Ltd should pursue other options by expanding its position in the European markets.

Negotiations for the purchase of the rival business have commenced and these are likely to be completed by February 2027. However, due to the differences of opinion in the senior management team, it has been proposed that, should the purchase go ahead, Bob and Marion would be asked to leave.

Bob and Marion are aware that their positions are at risk and a consultation process has commenced between them and the Human Resources team. Based on the initial meeting, the current proposal is for the following cash payments to be made:

	£
Statutory redundancy	17,130
Ex gratia payment	85,630
Restrictive covenant payment	50,000
Assistance with legal fees	2,000	(to be paid directly to the solicitor)

It is likely that the consultation will be completed in January 2027 and Bob and Marion would then work their notice periods (six months). Both Bob and Marion would be required to attend the office during their notice periods up until the point at which the acquisition goes through. Once the rival business has been acquired, Bob and Marion would no longer be required to come into the office but would continue to receive their monthly salary of £8,000 until their notice periods have come to an end.

During the notice period, they would each continue to have use of their company cars and fuel would be provided for private use. These cars would then be given to them as part of the redundancy package. The details of these cars are as follows:

Marion has a Tesla Model S – CO₂ emissions 0g/km, list price £89,480, current market value £51,780.

Bob has a Maserati Ghibli 3l v6 diesel – CO₂ emissions 158g/km, list price £49,620, current market value of £30,950.

They would each continue to be included on the company healthcare policy (cash equivalent value of £2,500 each per year) for five years from the termination date.

Requirement:

Explain the UK tax and national insurance treatment of the proposals relating to the potential departure of Bob and Marion from the firm, making suggestions as appropriate. Detailed calculations are not required. (15)

11. Bestrest Hotels UK Ltd has recruited Nikolas to become the general manager of its new Cambridge hotel from 20 April 2026. Nikolas (42 years old) currently manages the Bestrest Hotel group's flagship hotel in Rualand. Nikolas's salary in this new post is £75,000 a year and he has no other UK income.

Nikolas has been contributing to a Rualand based pension scheme at a rate of 5% of his salary and wishes to continue to do so, whilst working in the UK. The pension scheme is registered with the authorities in Rualand and is the equivalent of a UK approved pension scheme. Whilst working in Rualand, Nikolas's contributions to the scheme have been deductible against his Rualand tax liability.

Bestrest Hotels UK Ltd has indicated it is willing to make matching employer contributions to the Rualand pension fund instead of to its own UK occupational pension scheme, but only provided such contributions are deductible for corporation tax purposes.

The UK does not have a double tax agreement with Rualand.

Requirement:

- 1) Explain if Nikolas will be entitled to UK tax relief in respect of pension contributions to the Rualand scheme;
- 2) Explain whether Bestrest Hotels UK Ltd will be entitled to a corporation tax deduction in respect of the employer's contributions it makes to that scheme in respect of Nikolas; and
- 3) Explain how the annual allowance rules apply to Nikolas.

12. Barbary Ltd is an unlisted events management company, which set up a new office in Bristol with a view to expanding its operations into the South-West and South Wales on 1 July 2025. It has recently transferred Stephanie, a member of the existing senior leadership team, to the Bristol office to lead the expansion.

In order to motivate Stephanie to make a success of the expansion, on 5 July 2025, Barbary Ltd issued her with 2,000 £1 Class B shares. Class B shares entitle the holder to dividends at 50% of the dividend rate declared for ordinary £1 Class A shares and carry no voting rights.

Barbary Ltd had its shares valued at the beginning of July 2025 as:

Class of shares	Value per share
	£
Class A	6.20
Class B	3.00

If Stephanie succeeded in building the Bristol business so that it achieved turnover and net profit above a set level, she was entitled to convert her Class B shares into ordinary £1 Class A shares. If she achieved that target within three years of the Bristol office opening, she also had the option to acquire a further 500 ordinary £1 Class A shares at their July 2025 value of £6.20 each.

Stephanie was very good in her new role and achieved the target levels of turnover and net profit for the new business by 30 November 2027. At that time, the value of the Barbary Ltd's shares was as follows:

Class of shares	Value per share
	£
Class A	9.00
Class B	4.25

Stephanie's Class B shares were duly converted to Class A shares on 30 November 2027.

As the targets were met within three years of the opening of the Bristol office, on 30 November 2027 Stephanie was awarded the promised option to acquire the additional 500 ordinary £1 Class A shares at £6.20 each. She exercised that option on 1 July 2028, when the shares were worth £11.50 each. She expects to hold the shares for at least two years before selling them.

Requirement:

- 1) Explain how Stephanie should be taxed on her share-based remuneration; and (8)
 - 2) Explain Barbary Ltd's reporting obligations and the penalties that will apply if those obligations are not met. (7)

13. Canefero Industries plc ('CI') are a large bread and cake manufacturer. CI's head office is in Leeds, but they are about to open a new manufacturing and distribution site just outside Hull.

Most workers are employed locally but some of the Leeds HR team have agreed to travel to the new site for at least part of the week to assist with training and provide on the ground HR support.

There is no desire for the HR team to be out of pocket and so it is proposed to pay all expenses associated with the trips to Hull.

Details are as follows:

- 1) Stan lives in Leeds and is based in the Leeds office. He will travel to Hull for three days a week for the next three months. He will stay overnight as it is anticipated days will be long. His remaining two days a week will be spent at home (although occasionally he will go to the Leeds office for meetings). He is to be fully reimbursed his hotel expenses and travel costs.
- 2) Nishi also lives in Leeds. She works four days a week, previously at the Leeds office, but has agreed that going forward indefinitely, she will spend two of these days each week in Hull. She will be reimbursed all costs of travel to and from Hull.
- 3) Jason works only at client sites as a merchandiser for CI. He is provided with a company car and with petrol. He must reimburse all private mileage fuel. His official base is Leeds and it is usual for him to treat his trips to client sites as business mileage. Going forward, his base is going to switch to Hull as many of his clients are based near there and it will give credibility to the new location, although he will still live in Leeds. It is anticipated that he will call into Hull office most mornings to collect the samples/products he needs. It has been agreed that he can still treat his journeys from his home to client sites via the Hull location as business mileage.

Requirement:

Explain the tax and NIC consequences of the proposals. (10)

14. Sporket Advertising Ltd ('SA') is a UK company working in the advertising and marketing sector.

For the last two months, SA has been using a freelance graphic artist, Simon Jelani, on a project for one of its clients. Simon has been working under the direction of the director in charge of the client account.

He has been and will continue to be, working almost exclusively for SA for the duration of the project, which is likely to last for at least another four months. He does have some other clients which he may work for if there are periods when SA have nothing for him to do.

He works at the SA premises using SA's equipment. He is paid at an agreed hourly rate for the work, provided it meets with the account director's approval.

When SA first engaged Simon, he insisted that he was self-employed and so SA have been paying his monthly invoices on this basis. However, the HR manager is concerned as to whether this is the correct approach.

Requirement:

Explain whether, based on the facts, Simon is being correctly treated as self-employed, and if not, what the consequences of this are likely to be. (15)

15. Philharmonia Events Ltd is a UK company specialising in arranging musical study courses and events. It has arranged for some overseas individuals to run sessions at a 'summer school'. This summer school will take place in Birmingham in August 2026 and will last for one month. These individuals are tax resident outside the UK and employed by non-UK resident employers. In total there will be four individuals:
- Dieter, tax resident in Germany, is an employee of a brass instrument manufacturing company based in Munich. It is expected that Dieter will spend fewer than 60 days in the UK;
 - Alanza, tax resident in Brazil, is employed by a music publisher there. It is expected that Alanza will spend fewer than 60 days in the UK;
 - Virginia, tax resident in Kenya, is head of music studies at Nairobi University. However, unlike Dieter and Caroline, Virginia will be temporarily employed by Philharmonia Events Ltd. It is expected that she will spend fewer than 60 days in the UK; and
 - Nasir, tax resident in France, is employed by the Paris Academy of Music, who are donating his services to the summer school as part of their sponsorship of the event. Nasir's sister lives in London and he is planning to spend a further three weeks visiting her on holiday and so will spend more than 60 days in the UK.

Requirement:

Outline the PAYE and national insurance implications for Philharmonia Events Ltd regarding the four employees' planned activities during their time in the UK. Calculations are not required. (15)

Notes:

- A: The UK has Double Tax Treaties with France, Germany and Kenya, all of which have an employment article broadly in line with the following OECD model:

INCOME FROM EMPLOYMENT

- 1) Subject to the provisions of Articles 2 and 3, salaries, wages and other similar remuneration derived by a resident of a Contracting State in respect of an employment shall be taxable only in that State unless the employment is exercised in the other Contracting State. If the employment is so exercised, such remuneration as is derived therefrom may be taxed in that other State.
 - 2) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph 1, remuneration derived by a resident of a Contracting State in respect of an employment exercised in the other Contracting State shall be taxable only in the first-mentioned State if:
 - a) The recipient is present in the other State for a period or periods not exceeding in the aggregate 183 days in any twelve month period commencing or ending in the fiscal year concerned, and
 - b) The remuneration is paid by, or on behalf of, an employer who is not a resident of the other State, and
 - c) The remuneration is not borne by a permanent establishment which the employer has in the other State.
- B: The UK does not have a reciprocal social security agreement with either Brazil or Kenya.

1. THISSOP LTD

1) Penalties

Penalties for late payment of tax and NIC

The level of penalty for late payment of tax and national insurance contributions ('NICs') depends on the number of late payments known as 'defaults' in the tax year.

The first late payment in the tax year (in this case the payment for the May period) is not treated as a default.

The penalty for each of the August 2025, September 2025 and November 2025 payments is 1% of the tax and NICs paid late. For December 2025 and February 2026, the level of the penalty increases to 2% of the tax and NIC paid late.

There is no mention of how late the payments were. If any tax and NICs remains unpaid six months after the due date for payment (including the payment for May 2025), an additional penalty of 5% of the outstanding amount can be levied. A further penalty of 5% arises where payment is still outstanding after 12 months of the due date. This is definitely the case in relation to the tax and NICs on the bonus payments if not paid until January 2028.

All penalties are in addition to the late payment interest charges, which are currently charged at 7%.

If Thissop Ltd cannot pay the tax and NICs on the bonus payment sooner, consideration should be given to approaching HMRC to request that payment be paid over monthly instalments. There is also the possibility of a short deferral period. If HMRC agree to the request (known as a an agreed 'time to pay' arrangement), interest will still accrue but Thissop Ltd will not be charged any late payment penalties which would have accrued after the arrangement is in place. This is of course, provided any terms set down by HMRC are complied with.

Penalties for errors

The bonuses should have been reported on the Full Payment Submissions ('FPS') due on or before the date that the bonuses were paid. As Josh omitted them from the FPS, this is an error which attracts a penalty; the amount of which depends on whether the error was careless, deliberate but not concealed or deliberate and concealed.

No penalty will be charged if Josh took 'reasonable care' when preparing the FPS. In this situation however, given he ignored the directors' bonuses because he didn't know what to do, it is unlikely that this will be successfully argued.

An error is treated as deliberate if an incorrect FPS was submitted knowingly and intentionally. An error is deliberate and concealed if an incorrect FPS was submitted knowingly and intentionally and active steps were taken to hide the error. It is likely that HMRC will accept that Josh made a deliberate but not concealed error.

The penalty is calculated as a percentage of HMRC's potential lost revenue, ie the extra tax and NICs due. The maximum penalty is 70% for a deliberate but not concealed inaccuracy (30% for a careless inaccuracy, and 100% for a deliberate and concealed inaccuracy).

The maximum penalty can be reduced for either a prompted or an unprompted disclosure. Thissop Ltd should contact HMRC as soon as possible to tell them about the error in relation to the other directors, so as to minimise the penalties due. This will mean giving HMRC reasonable help in calculating the additional liability and access to company records to check the amount due.

As HMRC have already discovered the error in Steve Simons' return, they are likely to regard any disclosure about the other directors on the same issue as a prompted disclosure and therefore the minimum penalty would be 35%.

2) RTI obligations

As the error has been discovered after 19 April 2026, it should now be corrected by submitting an additional FPS. This should record the difference between what was originally reported, as paid to the directors, and the correct amount.

2. ALPHA PLC

The UK income tax issues for Astrid as a result of her proposed secondment to the UK are as follows:

Residence

In order to determine the extent to which Astrid is within the territorial scope of UK tax, it is necessary to determine her UK tax residence position under the Statutory Residence Test ('SRT') contained in Finance Act 2013, Sch.45.

Taking the first full UK tax year of the secondment as an example, the facts suggest that she will only be spending one midnight in the UK and two workdays in the UK per week. If we allow for four weeks' annual leave, this gives 48 midnights and 96 UK workdays for the tax year. As such, none of the automatic overseas tests are met.

Furthermore, none of the automatic UK tests are met either, on the basis that Astrid does not:

- spend more than 183 days in the UK during the year; nor
- have a home in the UK; nor
- work full time, carrying out at least 75% of her duties in the UK.

Her residence status will therefore be determined under the Sufficient Ties Test. With 48 midnights in the UK, she will be allowed up to three ties in the UK and remain non-resident. Given that she does not have UK resident family, she does not have an accommodation tie, she does not have a 90-day tie (and should not throughout the three years) and the country tie is not applicable as she has not previously been resident in the UK, she will only have one tie, the work tie, and therefore it is expected that she will remain non-resident during the course of the assignment.

As Astrid will remain non-resident in the UK, she will only be taxable on her UK-sourced income which, in the context of employment income, is income relating to her UK workdays. Due to her role and seniority, there is unlikely to be any scope to argue that the workdays are merely incidental to her overseas role.

Alpha plc will be responsible for deducting and accounting for income tax on all of Astrid's earnings, although, because Astrid is non-UK resident, it is possible to make a notification online to HMRC pursuant to ITEPA 2003, s.690A. Once the notification is acknowledged by HMRC, Alpha plc may restrict PAYE to the percentage of earnings relating to UK workdays identified in the notification. Making a s.690A notification avoids the cash flow disadvantage of applying PAYE in full and Astrid then having to reclaim the overpaid amount through self-assessment. However, Astrid will still be required to submit a self-assessment tax return to ensure the correct tax is paid. It should also be noted that Alpha plc must make a new s.690A notification each tax year. It should also submit a revised notification during the tax year if Astrid's circumstances change.

It is also recommended that advice is sought on the tax withholding and reporting position in Sweden.

UK tax relief on expenses

Alpha plc will be bearing the costs of Astrid's return flights, accommodation and subsistence while Astrid is in the UK and, given these costs relate to duties carried out in the UK and are therefore within the territorial scope, it is necessary to consider the extent to which UK tax relief is available.

Flights and accommodation

UK tax relief is available for the cost of the flights between the UK and Sweden which are borne by Alpha plc under ITEPA 2003, s.373 on the basis that:

- Astrid is non-UK resident; and
- Astrid has been non-resident in the UK in either of the two years prior to the secondment.

The facts suggest both conditions are met. The relief extends to the accommodation provided in respect of that journey (eg if it is provided en-route) but not once Astrid has arrived at her destination.

Subsistence costs

Tax relief for subsistence may be available under ITEPA 2003, s.338 but this will depend on whether it is possible to argue that her workplace in the UK may be treated as a 'temporary workplace'.

Given that her attendance at the UK workplace will be in the course of a period which exceeds 24 months, it will only be possible to consider that the UK is a temporary workplace if the duties are not carried out in the course of a period of 'continuous work', per ITEPA 2003, s.339(5)(a). HMRC consider this to be the case if an individual's attendance at that workplace comprises more than 40% of the total duties carried out over that period. With two workdays a week, it is not clear whether this test is met.

If Astrid's work pattern can be managed so that she spends less than 40% of her working time in the UK, then there would be scope to make a claim under s.338 in respect for her UK subsistence costs, but this is open to challenge by HMRC as the 40% test is non-statutory.

If Astrid carries out more than 40% of her duties in the UK, then the UK workplace will be a permanent one and no deduction will be available for subsistence.

3. HI INTERNATIONAL PLC

Ayushi's student loan was taken out after 1 September 2012 for a course in an English university and is therefore a 'Plan 2' loan. When Ayushi started her job with HI International plc (HII), she confirmed that she was making repayments. Therefore, until such time as HII receives a Stop Notice from HMRC, it must deduct student loan repayments when earnings exceed £2,372.50 per month.

In July, Ayushi received a welcome payment of £1,000 in addition to her normal salary payment of £1,833. The welcome payment relates to her employment with HII and, as such, is taxable as earnings and is subject to Class 1 National Insurance Contributions ('NIC'). This is added to Ayushi's normal pay, making total earnings for July of £2,833.

Student loan deductions are worked out using pay for the month for Class 1 NIC purposes. This means the £50 added to Ayushi's pay in respect of her health insurance benefit is ignored as this is subject to Class 1A NIC rather than Class 1 NIC.

The calculation of the student loan deduction is therefore as follows:

	£
Salary	1,833.00
Welcome payment	1,000.00
Total earnings for NIC purposes	2,833.00
Less threshold	(2,372.50)
	460.50

Student loan deduction at 9% (rounded down to the nearest pound)	41

This amount of £41 would have been deducted from July pay.

The pay in August did not include any earnings for Class 1 NIC purposes other than the salary of £1,833 which is below the monthly proportion of the student loan repayment threshold of £2,372.50. No student loan deductions were therefore due for August.

The money that HII deducts from pay in respect of student loans is paid over monthly to HMRC, who pass it on to the Student Loans Company. As the employer, HII is not in a position to look at Ayushi's student loan account to see whether any repayments are due. However, if Ayushi believes that over the course of the year, too much has been deducted from her pay, she can apply to the Student Loans Company for a refund once the tax year has ended on 5 April.

The total amount that has been deducted from Ayushi in respect of her student loan for the year will be included in her end of year statement of earnings and deductions (P60).

4. SAMPHIRE LTD

Where there is a contract between Samphire Ltd and a third party for the provision of the personal services of an individual, under which the third party pays Samphire Ltd, consideration has to be given to the agency rules contained in ITEPA 2003, Pt 2, Ch 7. If these rules apply, PAYE and national insurance contributions ('NICs') will need to be deducted and accounted for by Samphire Ltd in respect of payments it makes to the individuals carrying out the services.

One of the main exceptions to the agency rules, relates to the nature of the work. There are specific types of work that tax and NIC do not have to be deducted for under PAYE. The provisions do not apply if the worker provided by Samphire Ltd is working in one of the following roles:

- i) As a musician, actor or other entertainer
- ii) As a fashion, photographic or artist's model
- iii) Working in the worker's own home or at premises not controlled or managed by the client nor prescribed by the nature of the services

As Dermot Flynn is being provided to the theme park to work as an entertainer, Samphire Ltd does not have to deduct tax and NICs under PAYE from payments made to him.

In other cases, the key test is whether anyone has a right of supervision, direction or control over the way in which work is done by the person Samphire Ltd provides to the client. This can be a tricky test to apply but HMRC interpret each leg of the test as meaning:

Supervision: watching or overseeing the work; checking that the work meets a required standard.

Direction: making sure the work is done in a certain way, by providing instructions, guidance or advice.

Control: telling the worker how they should do the work or having the power to move them from one job to another.

Only one leg of the test needs to be met (to any degree) to make payments to the individual subject to PAYE. It also does not matter who has the right of supervision, direction or control or, importantly, whether they actually exercise that right. Unless it is obvious from the kind of work being carried out, that supervision, direction and control would not be appropriate, Samphire Ltd should assume that the test is met and operate PAYE in respect of payments to the worker.

One example of the kind of work where supervision, direction and control would not be appropriate is where a worker has been engaged to apply specialist skills to deliver work which no-one in the client business would know how to supervise, direct or control. This would appear to apply to Mohammed Khalid's engagement and therefore Samphire Ltd need not deduct tax and NICs from payments made to him.

However, it would appear difficult to argue that the work done as a receptionist by Alison Eddowes is not subject to supervision, direction and control or that her work consists of specialist skills. Samphire Ltd should therefore deduct tax and NICs from any payment made to her, as well as making secondary Class 1 NICs contributions in respect of her earnings. Samphire Ltd should re-issue a starter checklist to her, explaining that PAYE does apply to her.

Finally, PAYE does not need to be operated in respect of payments where the workers provided to the client are actually employed by another party, such as is the case with the ten workers provided by Dilnott Ltd. In this case, it is Dilnott Ltd that should be deducting tax and NICs from the payments it makes to those ten workers. Samphire Ltd can therefore pay Dilnott Ltd the full contracted amount.

Quarterly reporting requirements

As Samphire Ltd provides workers to clients to carry out services for those clients, a quarterly report has to be submitted to HMRC. This report is quite separate from, and in addition to, any PAYE reporting obligations.

Reports are due in respect of each tax quarter (ending 5 July, 5 October, 5 January and 5 April) and must be submitted within one month from the end of the tax quarter.

The report should contain details of any workers that have been provided to clients during the period, except those which have had tax and NICs deducted under PAYE. This means Samphire Ltd would not need to include details in respect of Alison Eddowes as long as it has operated PAYE on the income paid to her.

It also does not need details of payments made to:

- i) a musician, actor or other entertainer;
- ii) a fashion, photographic or artist's model; or
- iii) a worker working in their own home or at premises not controlled nor managed by the client, unless they have to because of the services and work they provide to the client

Details of Dermot Flynn do not, therefore, need to be included, although details of Mohammed Khalid and the workers provided by Dilnott Ltd will need to be.

In the report, all of the individual workers must be identified, so if, for example, Samphire Ltd does not know the names, addresses and National insurance numbers of the workers provided by Dilnott Ltd, a request can be made to Dilnott Ltd to supply that information.

The report also has to include, for each worker mentioned, the reason why Samphire Ltd did not deduct tax and NICs under PAYE.

There are penalties that apply if the required reports are not made or are submitted late.

5. BIGELOW PLC

Income tax position

Company directors (including non-executive directors) are office-holders and payments made to them in relation to their directorships are considered to be earnings for UK tax purposes.

Leo has not previously been UK tax resident and therefore as long as he spends less than 46 days in the UK in the tax year, according to the Statutory Residence Test, he will be treated as non-UK tax resident. Directors who are not resident in the UK are taxable only on any earnings that relate to duties that they carry out in the UK. As such, Leo will be subject to UK tax on a pro-rated amount of his income from Bigelow plc to reflect the number of UK workdays performed.

UK workdays, where the duties performed in the UK can be shown to be merely incidental to a non-resident's overseas duties can be disregarded. While there is no statutory definition of 'incidental', HMRC considers that duties carried on in the UK by a company director are rarely considered to be merely incidental. Consequently, when Leo attends Board meetings and committee meetings in the UK, these duties are treated as substantive.

For other days spent in the UK, further information will be needed on the nature of Leo's duties before we can conclude on whether they are incidental or not.

For 2026/27 and subsequent tax years, Leo will continue to be taxable in the UK on income from non-incidental UK duties. If, however, his days in the UK rise to 183 or more or if he acquires a home in the UK or if he spends more than 45 days in the UK and also has other ties to the UK over and above his work, (for example, family or accommodation), he could become UK tax resident. In this case, he will be taxable in the UK on his worldwide income, and as such, the position will need to be revisited if the facts change from those outlined.

Technically, Bigelow plc needs to account for PAYE and national insurance contributions on all of Leo's earnings with Bigelow plc. However, for 2026/27 (and for each subsequent tax year if Leo remains non-UK resident), Bigelow plc can make an online notification to HMRC under ITEPA 2003, s.690A. As soon as the notification is acknowledged by HMRC, Bigelow plc can account for PAYE on the notified percentage of fees that relate to UK duties only. Leo should also complete a UK self-assessment tax return to ensure that the correct amount of UK tax is paid.

Bigelow plc must make a new s.690A notification each tax year. It should also submit a revised notification during the tax year if Leo's circumstances change.

As Leo is tax resident in a country which taxes worldwide income, Leo is likely to also be subject to income tax on the fees paid to him for his duties in the UK in his country of residence and will need to claim relief against those taxes for the UK taxes paid.

Travel and expenses

Travel and associated expenses will not be subject to UK income tax provided the following conditions are met:

- 1) Leo is non-UK resident or a qualifying new resident;
- 2) The amount is included in the earnings or the reimbursement of expenses incurred by Leo on a journey which:
 - i) ends on, or is made during the period of five years beginning with, a date that is a 'qualifying arrival date' (see below) in relation to the employee; and

- ii) is made from the country outside the UK where Leo is normally resident to the place in the UK where the duties of the employment are performed (or back to the home country from the UK).

For these purposes, a date is a 'qualifying arrival date' if:

- i) It is a date on which Leo arrives in the UK to perform duties for which they receive taxable earnings; and
- ii) Leo has not been in the UK for two years prior to the arrival date for any purpose, or the person was not UK tax resident in the two tax years before the arrival date.

As Leo has not previously been UK tax resident, the exemption should be available in relation to the flights to and from the UK. If Leo remains non-UK resident, the benefit of the exemption will go on indefinitely as every time he arrives in the UK, he will not have been resident in the UK for either of the two preceding tax years and as such, the arrival date will always be a 'qualifying arrival date'. However, if the situation changes, then the time limit of five years will begin to run from the arrival date after the first year of residence.

The exemption does not extend to accommodation and subsistence whilst visiting the UK, although in Leo's case, these expenses are not paid by Bigelow plc in any event.

The provision or reimbursement of travel and subsistence in respect of journeys to the other locations in the UK (provided there is no stop-over to undertake substantive duties in London) should be exempt from UK tax on the basis that Leo is going to a temporary workplace, defined as such because he will spend less than 40 per cent of his working time there. This means that no income tax is due on the amount and Bigelow plc would have no reporting requirements in respect of these expenses.

National Insurance Contributions ('NICs')

In the absence of a reciprocal social security agreement between the UK and Leo's country of ordinary residence, the normal rules are, that Leo and Bigelow plc will pay UK social security contributions in respect of Leo's earnings.

There is a concessionary treatment where HMRC will not seek to charge NICs in respect of payments to a non-UK resident director of a UK registered company who is not otherwise within the scope of NICs, where the director attends no more than ten Board meetings in a tax year and either there is a single trip not exceeding two weeks or several smaller trips with each visit to the UK to attend a board meeting lasting no more than two days.

It is not clear on the facts whether this concession would apply in the current circumstances, but it would be worth considering further.

6. AERATECH LTDUK Income Tax implications

The liability to UK income tax in respect of the individual's income in a tax year (6 April-5 April) depends upon whether the individual is resident in the UK or not for tax purposes and whether the income derives from duties carried out in the UK or is overseas income.

Where an employee is non-tax resident in the UK, they are only taxable on earnings which relate to duties carried out in the UK. Where an employee is tax resident in the UK, they are taxable on their worldwide earnings, regardless of where the duties are carried out. The exception to this is where the employee is a qualifying new UK resident, essentially in the first four tax years of UK residence after a period of ten consecutive tax years of non-UK residence, in which case they may elect for overseas employment income to be free of UK tax.

Tax years before the tax year in which the secondment takes place

As the employees were UK resident and not qualifying new residents, they will have been liable for UK Income Tax on their worldwide income as it arose.

Tax year in which the secondment takes place

In general, an individual's residence status is determined for a tax year as a whole by applying the statutory residence test ('SRT'). However, in certain circumstances, the legislation allows a 'split-year' treatment, whereby the tax year may be split into a UK part and an overseas part. The individual will be treated as UK resident in the UK part of the tax year and non-UK resident during the overseas part of the tax year.

The application of these rules will differ depending upon whether the secondment starts on 1 January or 1 July. Considering each of these in turn:

1) 18-month secondment starting on 1 January 2026

This secondment will span three different tax years.

For the tax year in which the secondment starts, the employees will be treated as UK resident under the automatic residence test. This is because the employees will have been present in the UK for at least 183 days between April 2025 and January 2026.

In the second tax year the employees are likely to be treated as non-UK resident because they will satisfy the 'working abroad' rules. Broadly the 'working abroad' condition is met where:

- i) The individual works abroad for an average of at least 35 hours a week for the whole of the tax year;
- ii) They have no 'significant breaks' in that overseas work (being 31 days or more without an overseas workday); and
- iii) They are present in the UK for fewer than 91 days in the tax year of which fewer than 31 of these days are spent working in the UK.

In the third tax year the employee will regain UK residence status if they spend at least 183 days in the UK. (There are other tests giving rise to automatic UK residence such as working full time in the UK and having a home in the UK which may also apply).

The split-year rules allow the years of departure and return to be split into UK and overseas parts if certain conditions are satisfied. The conditions are described in the legislation as split-year 'Cases'.

Under Case 1, the year of departure is split when:

- i) The employee satisfies the 'overseas work criteria' between the date of departure and the end of the tax year; and
- ii) The employee is non-UK resident in the following year under the third automatic test; the 'working abroad' test

The 'overseas work criteria' are broadly as outlined above, ie the employee works abroad for an average of at least 35 hours a week, and the days spent in the UK are less than the permitted limits (being fewer than 91 days in the UK of which fewer than 31 of these days are spent working). These limits are scaled down in the year of departure.

Where the Case 1 conditions are met, the employee will be UK resident up to the day before they start working overseas and non-UK resident from their first overseas workday.

On completion of the secondment, the tax year of return can also be split, this time under Case 6. This Case applies to employees returning to the UK after a period of overseas work.

Case 6 applies where all of the below apply:

- i) The individual is non-resident in the previous year under the third automatic test; the 'working abroad' test (as outlined above)
- ii) The individual was UK resident in at least one of the five tax years prior to the tax year of their return
- iii) The individual is UK tax resident in the tax year following the year of their return
- iv) The employee satisfies the 'overseas work criteria' between the start of the tax year of their return and their final overseas workday.

Where the Case 6 conditions are met, the employee will resume UK residence from the day after their final overseas workday.

Consequently, if the 18-month secondment starts on 1 January 2026, the employee will be non-UK resident throughout the period of secondment (being from the date of the first overseas workday until the overseas secondment finishes).

This would mean that, during the period of the secondment, the employee will only pay UK Income Tax on any UK income. All employment income and expenses paid whilst on secondment will be foreign income (being income paid in return for duties performed outside the UK). This foreign income would not be taxable in the UK.

2) 18-month secondment starting on 1 July 2026

A secondment starting on 1 July 2026 will last until 31 December 2027. It is assumed that on their return, the employee will resume full-time work in the UK and again occupy a home in the UK.

This secondment spans two tax years. In neither of those tax years will the employee be automatically resident overseas because they will spend more than 15 days in the UK, they will exceed the permitted UK days and workdays and will not work sufficient hours outside the UK for the whole of the tax year.

In both tax years the employee will remain resident in the UK. This is because they will satisfy either the home test or the UK work test.

The home test is satisfied if there is a period of 91 days (30 of which must fall into the tax year in question) where the individual has a home in which they spend at least 30 days during the tax year. Further, during that 91 day period, the individual must either have no overseas home, or if they do have an overseas home, they must spend no more than 30 days in it during the tax year.

If the employees leave the UK on 1 July, they have (presumably) been living in their UK home for at least 30 days in the tax year. This would be 30 days during the three months from 6 April to 1 July. There would therefore also be a 91 day period (with at least 30 of those days in the tax year, which would be anytime from February to the end of June) where the employees had a UK home without an overseas home.

When the employee returns to the UK at the end of December 2027, they will once again presumably live in their home in the UK for at least 30 days in the tax year. Furthermore there will be a 91 day period (during the three months from 1 January to 5 April) where the employees had a UK home without an overseas home. Therefore, they will likely be UK resident in this tax year (2027/28) too.

The UK work test is satisfied if there is a 365 day period during which the employee works full-time and any part of that 365 day period falls into the tax year under consideration.

Where employees leave the UK on 1 July, they have (presumably) been working for at least 365 days full-time in the UK, with the last few months of that 365 day period falling into the 2026/27 tax year.

When the employees return to the UK in December 2027, they will once again take up their full-time UK duties (with the expectation of continuing for a further 365 days) upon their return. December 2027 falls into the 2027/28 tax year.

Split-year treatment will not be available. Case 1 will not apply because the employee will not be non-UK resident in the following year (2028/29 in this instance) under the 'work abroad' rules. This is because the UK days/workdays will exceed the permitted limits and the overseas work does not extend to the whole of the tax year, as explained above.

Consequently, the employee will remain resident in the UK throughout the 18-month period of the secondment. As a result, income from the employment with AY will be subject to Income Tax in the UK. If the income is also taxable in Yeswain, unilateral double tax relief may be available. This reduces the UK Income Tax liability by the lower of the UK and the foreign tax paid on the income.

Benefits and employment expenses

The tax treatment of benefits depends on whether the employee is UK resident or not. If non-UK resident at the time the benefit is provided, there will be no UK tax but there may be tax in Yeswain. It is recommended that advice on the employee's Yeswain tax liability is sought.

Where the employee is UK resident (that is, the secondment commences on 1 July 2026), most of the proposed benefits will be exempt from income tax in any event:

- i) The overseas location will be treated as a temporary workplace on the basis the secondment is less than two years. As such, the payment or reimbursement of expenses relating to travel and subsistence, including accommodation, will not constitute a taxable benefit.
- ii) Overseas medical expenses and medical insurance paid for by the employer are not a taxable benefit

- iii) Costs of journeys to and from the overseas location by a spouse, civil partner or minor child do not give rise to a taxable benefit as long as:
- The employer pays or reimburses the cost of the travel
 - The employee is abroad for at least 60 consecutive days; and
 - Journeys are restricted to two return journeys by the same person in a tax year

AY intends to pay for one return visit per month for either employees or their 'relatives'. Up to two journeys per tax year by relatives can therefore be tax free but only if that 'relative' is a spouse, civil partner or minor child of the employee (not by 'relatives' in general). Any other journeys paid for by AY would be taxable as a benefit on the employee if the employee is being treated as tax resident in the UK at the time that the journey takes place.

The UK tax implications of selling the UK property whilst abroad

The UK capital gains tax ('CGT') treatment of the disposal of an individual's private residence will depend on whether the disposal took place in a UK resident or non-resident period.

If the owner is treated as UK resident at the time of disposal, the gain is the difference between sales proceeds and total costs of acquisition.

Private residence relief ('PRR') will exempt any gains which arise during periods when the individual occupied the property as his only or main residence. Therefore, gains arising during periods of absence will be taxable.

However, certain periods of absence can be classified as deemed occupation. For example, the last nine months of ownership are always treated as deemed occupation as long as the property has been the taxpayer's main residence at some point. Deemed occupation also includes any period of absence, no matter how long, during which the individual was employed abroad. This particular period needs to be preceded and followed by actual occupation of the property, and no work can be carried out in the UK.

There are some situations where the owner who has worked abroad is unable to resume occupation because the terms of his employment require him to work elsewhere. It may therefore still be possible that any period of absence would be covered by the deemed occupation rules and that no gain would be taxable.

If an asset disposal takes place in a non-resident period, whether in a tax year in which the individual is non-UK resident or the 'overseas part' of a split tax year, the resulting gain is not ordinarily chargeable to UK CGT. However, a gain on a non-resident's disposal of residential property is chargeable under the Non-Resident CGT ('NRCGT') rules. In this case the gain is normally calculated by assuming that its acquisition cost is the value of the property at 6 April 2015. Any gains payable to HMRC would be due 60 days from completion declared by a NRCGT return due on the same day.

PRR would be available for the final nine months of ownership but would only otherwise be available for periods in tax years after April 2015 if the individual or their spouse/civil partner spent at least 90 midnights in the property in the tax year. As the employees will return to the UK before a full five years' non-UK residence has elapsed, the full capital gain on the property calculated using historical cost rather than the value at 5 April 2015 will become payable on 31 January in the year after the tax year that the employee returns to the UK ends. Any tax on the NRCGT gains calculated and paid whilst they were away, will be able to be offset against this liability.

7. FIBROTECH LTD

Fibrotech Ltd will be required to operate PAYE and a PAYE scheme should therefore be set up from the outset.

Kieran Clarke ('KC') – income tax issues

KC will become resident in the UK for tax purposes under the statutory residence test. This is because he is likely to spend more than 183 days in the UK in a tax year or, if not, may be treated as working full time in the UK (which requires a period of 365 days full time working in the UK of which at least one day falls in the tax year in question with more than seventy-five per cent of his workdays being in the UK). The statutory residence test applies to the whole tax year.

On the current plans, he will also be UK resident for 2027/28 on the basis of the number of days spent in the UK.

Ordinarily, a UK resident is subject to tax on all earnings, regardless of where the work duties are performed. However, because KC has been non-UK resident for a period of at least ten consecutive years prior to 2026/27, he will be treated as a qualifying new resident for the first four tax years of UK residence. Consequently, he can choose to make elections for one or more of his overseas employment income, overseas non-employment income and overseas gains to be exempt from UK tax. Once elections have been made, claims for the exemption are made each tax year through self-assessment. Overseas employment income is classed as earnings relating to overseas workdays, subject to an annual cap per tax year of the lower of £300,000, or 30% of qualifying employment income.

One of the consequences of claiming foreign income and gains exemptions is the loss of personal income tax allowances and the annual capital gains tax exemption. KC would therefore need to consider whether the tax saving on the earnings kept outside the UK is enough to compensate for the loss of the £12,570 personal allowance. In cases where employees are earning over £125,140 the personal allowance is abated down to zero in any case.

KC – PAYE issues

Fibrotech Ltd is responsible for deducting the tax due on employee earnings under PAYE and paying this over to HMRC. It can use commercial payroll software or outsource the function to a third-party payroll provider. Alternatively, it can use HMRC's 'Basic PAYE Tools' if it has no more than nine employees for whom PAYE should be applied.

For monthly-paid employees, PAYE deductions are typically made on a monthly basis with such deductions usually paid electronically to HMRC by the 22nd of the following month. However, if the total tax and NICs payable are less than £1,500 per month on average, the PAYE deductions can be paid to HMRC on a quarterly basis.

Technically, even if KC makes a claim for overseas employment income to be exempt from UK tax, Fibrotech Ltd should apply PAYE on the full amount of KC's earnings. KC can then claim the overpaid tax back when he submits his self-assessment return.

Alternatively, Fibrotech Ltd can make an online notification to HMRC under ITEPA 2003, s.690D specifying the percentage of earnings relating to UK duties. Once HMRC has acknowledged the notification, Fibrotech Ltd would then be able to apply PAYE only on the notified proportion. KC will still be required to submit a self-assessment tax return to ensure the correct tax is paid. It should also be noted that Fibrotech Ltd must make a new s.690D notification each tax year. It should also submit a revised notification during the tax year if KC's circumstances change.

Kieran Clarke – NIC issues

As Ireland is an EU member state, KC's NIC position will be determined by reference to the Protocol on Social Security Co-ordination between the UK and the EU. These rules operate to ensure that an individual can only be subject to the social security legislation of a single country at any given time.

As KC is on a 'short assignment' (ie he is not expected to be in the UK for more than 24 months), he will remain in the Irish NIC regime. He should apply for a certificate of continuing liability from the Irish authorities which will exempt him from NIC in the UK during his secondment.

Other secondees

Where an individual works in the UK, any earnings paid are generally taxable in the UK, even if the individual is only working in the UK for a short period of time and remains non-UK resident. The earnings however may also be taxable in the individual's home country. If so, the home country should then give the individual relief for the UK tax paid.

However, it is possible to obtain an exemption from paying any UK tax if either:

- i) The UK duties are incidental to the performance of the employee's overseas duties (unlikely to be the case here); or
- ii) The visitor claims exemption from UK tax under a Double Taxation Agreement ('DTA'). In this case the claim would be under Article 15 of the UK/Ireland agreement.

Treaty exemption from UK tax on employment income is available where:

- i) the employee remains contractually employed by the home country employer;
- ii) their remuneration is paid by an employer who is not resident in the UK; and
- iii) the remuneration is not borne by the UK, so not deductible in computing the profits of an enterprise chargeable to tax in the UK.

Therefore, assuming Fibrotech Ltd does not bear the costs of the additional staff members, UK tax is not due on the earnings of employees visiting the UK for the two or four months planned.

An Appendix 4 agreement between Fibrotech Ltd and HMRC removes the obligation for Fibrotech Ltd to account for PAYE on included employees. This avoids the need for Fibrotech Ltd to account for PAYE on payments to the employees working in the UK and the employees then seeking a refund through their self-assessment return.

Although an Appendix 4 agreement is aimed at employees benefiting from treaty exemption (and therefore costs being borne by an overseas employer),

HMRC take the view that employees who are present in the UK for less than 60 days, remain contractually employed by an overseas employer, and are on a foreign payroll, continue to be economically employed by an overseas employer, even if a UK entity bears some of the costs. Consequently, they would allow any additional staff members seconded to the UK for fewer than 60 days, to be included in an Appendix 4 agreement regardless of whether Fibrotech Ltd bears any related costs, provided the staff remain on the Irish payroll throughout their secondment. This would potentially apply to the employees coming for two months to the UK, but not four months.

An Appendix 4 agreement is obtained by signing the designated form and submitting it to HMRC. It comes into effect when returned signed by HMRC.

Under an Appendix 4 Agreement, Fibrotech Ltd would still have certain reporting obligations to HMRC (which must be fulfilled by 31 May following the end of the tax year).

In all cases, HMRC require a list of individuals covered by the agreement plus further information, depending on the number of days the individuals spend in the UK:

- i) For employees present in the UK for fewer than 31 days there are no other reporting requirements
- ii) For those here between 31 and 59 days, HMRC simply require confirmation that each short term business visitor remains contractually employed outside the UK and the 60 days do not form part of a longer period
- iii) For employees present in the UK for between 60 and 90 days in the year, Fibrotech Ltd must provide details about the STBV and their visits to the UK, as well as confirm that a UK entity does not ultimately bear the cost of the employee's remuneration or function as the employee's employer during the UK assignment
- iv) For employees who are in the UK between 91 and 150 days in the year HMRC will require all the above information plus a certificate confirming the employee's residence in Ireland.

8. KNOWLE PLC

The first thing to consider is Selwyn's UK tax residence position using the statutory residence test.

Selwyn is not automatically non-UK resident as he expects to spend more than 15 days in the UK and cannot satisfy the overseas work test as although it appears he will spend less than 91 days in the UK, he will spend more than 30 days working (for more than three hours) in the UK over the course of the tax year.

On the assumption that the assignment to Portugal will last at least until 5 April 2027, Selwyn will not be automatically UK resident, as he will not be spending 183 days in the UK during the tax year.

He will also not be automatically UK resident under the 'home' test as, although there will be a 91 day period (of which at least 30 fall into the tax year) during which he will retain a home in the UK, he will also have an overseas home (in (or near) Lisbon) during this period, where he expects to spend at least 30 days in the tax year.

As Selwyn will not work full time in the UK in 2026/27, the third automatic UK test will not be passed either.

However, Selwyn will be UK resident under the 'sufficient ties test'. He has three ties to the UK.

- i) An 'accommodation' tie - Selwyn has available accommodation in the UK (the family home) and will make use of it for at least one night in the year
- ii) A 'work' tie - it would seem that Selwyn will work for at least three hours on at least 40 days in the year in the UK
- iii) A '90-day' tie - he will have been present for at least 90 days in at least one of the previous two tax years

Selwyn will not have a 'family' tie as his wife will accompany him abroad and his children being at university, we assume are over 18.

Selwyn has been UK resident in at least one of the three previous tax years and will therefore be a 'leaver'. With three ties, he will be UK resident under the sufficient ties test if he spends 46 days or more in the UK. As he will spend one week a month in the UK, averaging approximately 60 to 84 days, this will mean that Selwyn's UK residence is retained.

Selwyn is moving to live in a country with which the UK has a DTA. Selwyn is likely to be resident in Portugal for tax purposes as he will be living and working in Lisbon for the majority of the year, although it is recommended that advice is sought to confirm this.

If he is dual resident for tax purposes under domestic rules, the tie-breaker clause of the Treaty will apply and Selwyn will be treated as resident only in the country in which he has a permanent home. If he has a permanent home in both countries, he is deemed to be a resident only of the State with which his personal and economic relations are closer (his 'centre of vital interests').

If this cannot be determined, he will be deemed to be a resident only of the State in which he has a habitual abode. Otherwise, he is resident in the State in which he is a national.

On the facts given, Selwyn has a permanent home in both states. It is debatable where his centre of vital interests is. However, his habitual abode is the UK. Selwyn's earnings will therefore be fully liable to UK tax. DTA exemption is unlikely to be available in Portugal given the number of days Selwyn will spend there and so Selwyn will also be liable to overseas tax in respect of his non-UK employment duties. Relief will be available against Selwyn's UK tax liability for the foreign tax paid.

Knowle plc has a tax presence in the UK and will therefore be required to apply PAYE to the full amount of Selwyn's earnings. It may also be required to deduct foreign tax and account for that tax to the overseas tax authority. In this case, PAYE can be calculated on Selwyn's earnings net of any foreign tax credit if an Appendix 5 agreement is entered into between Knowle plc and HMRC. Knowle plc should make an application to HMRC to put an Appendix 5 agreement in place.

No taxable benefit will arise for Selwyn if his travel costs to and from Lisbon are borne by the employer (whether they relate to the start or the end of the assignment or to business trips back to the UK). However, because the intention is for the secondment to last for more than two years, the Lisbon office will be regarded as a permanent workplace and any accommodation or subsistence provided by Knowle plc in Portugal will be a taxable benefit. The exact tax treatment will depend on how the benefit is provided. For example, if Knowle plc reimburse Selwyn for his expenses, this will be treated as earnings and subject to PAYE. If Knowle plc provide the accommodation, it will be a benefit reportable on P11D and Selwyn will pay any tax directly through self-assessment.

National Insurance Contributions ('NIC')

As Portugal is an EU member state, Selwyn's NIC position will be determined by reference to Protocol on Social Security Co-ordination between the UK and the EU. Those rules operate to ensure that an individual can only be subject to the social security legislation of a single state at any given time.

Selwyn will be performing duties both in the UK and Portugal. In such a case, he will be within the social security regime of the country where he is habitually resident if he spends at least 25% of his working time there. If he spends less than that proportion of time working there, he will be covered by the social security provisions of the country where his employer has its registered office.

For NIC purposes, it is likely that Selwyn will remain resident in the UK as he is habitually resident in the UK and the centre of his vital interests are in the UK. There is no indication that the centre of his interests will move to Portugal.

If, as is intended, Selwyn spends 25% of his working time in the UK, he should continue to pay NICs in the UK. Even if it turns out he spends slightly less than 25% of his working time in the UK, the UK NIC system would still apply as Knowle plc has its registered office in the UK.

Knowle plc should apply to HMRC for a certificate of continuing liability, confirming that UK NIC contributions will continue and ensuring that no Portuguese contributions will be due.

9. BREAKOUT LTDRegistration and annual reports

BreakOut Ltd must register any of the schemes it decides to use no later than 6 July following the end of the tax year in which the scheme is first used. After that, an online annual report must be submitted to HMRC for every tax year an employee holds shares, or options over shares, in BreakOut Ltd. This return is also due by 6 July following the end of the tax year. The report should include details of anything that has happened in connection with the shares or options. If nothing has happened, BreakOut Ltd must submit a nil return. Penalties apply for failures to make annual reports.

Outright share award of shares at a price of £2.50 per share

Where employees are awarded shares in BreakOut Ltd, the market value of the shares less the amount the employee pays for them is immediately taxable as earnings, ie $£5.00 - £2.50 = £2.50 \times 5,000 = £12,500$. If the shares are 'readily convertible assets' ('RCAs'), BreakOut Ltd is also obliged to account for income tax under PAYE and to collect employee's Class 1 national insurance contributions ('NICs') and pay over employer's Class 1 NICs in respect of this taxable amount. That is not the case here, since the shares are not listed on a recognised stock exchange and there are no trading arrangements for the shares or any explicit understanding that the shares can be sold in existence at this time. As the tax is not recovered from Daisy via PAYE, she would have to pay this over to HMRC in line with the normal self-assessment deadlines (31 January following the end of the tax year in which the tax charge arises). NICs are not due.

With regard to the loan to Daisy to enable her to subscribe for the shares, as the loan would be interest-free the 'cash equivalent' of the loan, based on interest at the 'official rate' of 3.75% would normally constitute a benefit to be declared on form P11D. However, where the loan is used to buy shares in a close company and the employee is either acquiring a material interest in BreakOut Ltd (5% or more) or works full-time in BreakOut Ltd, then no benefit arises and no P11D entries are required.

Daisy's gain on disposal, less the annual exempt amount (currently £3,000), would be taxable to capital gains tax. On the basis that she will hold 5,000 of the 105,000 shares in issue (original 100,000 plus 5,000 newly issued to Daisy) she would not be entitled to Business Asset Disposal Relief, as this is under the 5% minimum holding criteria to qualify.

Option to purchase the shares at £5 each if BreakOut Ltd is sold

No income tax charge arises on the grant of a share option. However, where an option is not granted under a tax-advantaged share option scheme, when the option is exercised, the market value of the shares less the option price (if any) is liable to income tax. The taxable amount of employment income assuming the shares would be worth £15 at the time of exercise would be $£15 - £5 = £10 \times 5,000 = £50,000$.

As the option would be exercised in anticipation of the sale of BreakOut Ltd, the shares would at that point be readily convertible assets and BreakOut Ltd would definitely be obliged to operate PAYE and account for employee and employer's Class 1 NICs.

BreakOut Ltd could consider including a clause in the option agreement requiring Daisy to pay BreakOut Ltd's Class 1 employer's NIC liability. The amount of employer's NICs that Daisy pays as a result of such a clause will reduce her taxable employment income.

BreakOut Ltd must include the employment income arising on exercise of the option (net of any employer's NICs paid by Daisy) in a Full Payment Submission ('FPS') which it must send to HMRC on the earlier of the date it operates PAYE on the payment and the payment deadline for tax and NICs (ie 14 days after the end of the tax month in which the exercise takes place).

If there is insufficient salary being paid to Daisy to deduct the income tax due under PAYE from then she must 'make good', ie reimburse, the income tax due under PAYE to BreakOut Ltd within 90 days after the end of the tax year in which the option is exercised. If Daisy does not do so, the amount of income tax paid by BreakOut Ltd via PAYE on her behalf must be entered on form P11D. Class 1 NICs are also payable. Even if Daisy then reimburses the income tax after the 90-day period has expired (by which time the income tax paid on her behalf has been treated as a taxable benefit) no further adjustment is able to be made.

In the event of an immediate sale of BreakOut Ltd, the sale of the shares will be a disposal by Daisy for CGT purposes, but assuming the base cost of the shares on acquisition (market value) and the sale price of the shares are the same, no capital gain would arise.

EMI option to purchase the shares at £5 each if BreakOut Ltd is sold

As this is a tax-advantaged scheme, there are additional reporting requirements for BreakOut Ltd. If it chooses to use an EMI scheme, the terms of the option will need to be in writing and BreakOut Ltd will need to register the scheme online with HMRC.

After HMRC have registered the scheme, they will provide a registration number and the grant of options must then be reported to HMRC, also by 6th July following the end of the tax year of the grant. BreakOut Ltd will also need to complete an annual report as described above.

No income tax charge arises on exercise of an EMI option if the option price is not less than the market value of the shares at the time of grant. In the event of an immediate sale of BreakOut Ltd, the sale of the shares will be a disposal for CGT purposes. Any gain will be calculated on any proceeds in excess of the exercise price, subject to the availability of the annual exempt amount. BADR will be available if Daisy has not used her lifetime limit. Daisy does not need to hold a minimum of 5% of the shares to qualify for BADR, and the period of ownership is counted from the date the option is granted, not when the shares are acquired, so given the estimated three year time period between grant of option and exercise means the minimum time period will be met. The capital gains tax is reportable via self-assessment.

Corporation tax relief

Corporation tax relief is available for employee share awards whether acquired outright, under a non-tax-advantaged share option, or under a tax-advantaged share option scheme such as EMI.

Certain requirements must be met for BreakOut Ltd to qualify for corporation tax relief, one of which is that BreakOut Ltd must not be under the control of another company. This is not in point of course in the case of an immediate outright share award, and if an option were granted as this will be exercisable immediately prior to any future sale, relief should be available.

Comparing the Alternatives

An outright award of shares will give Daisy the immediate benefits of share ownership. This is also the cheapest alternative for Daisy as she would be paying £12,500 for the shares plus would have taxable income of £12,500. However, she would need to fund not only the price of the shares but also the associated tax and would also be open to the risk that the share price might go down and the risk that a buyer is not found.

The grant of a non-tax-advantaged option allows risk and cash flow to be managed until a deal is anticipated. However, it is not tax-efficient as Daisy will pay income tax on the whole of the commercial growth in value when the option is exercised and BreakOut Ltd would incur substantial NIC costs.

The EMI route, taking into account corporation tax relief and the absence of income tax charges and NIC costs, is clearly the most tax-efficient option, despite the additional initial reporting requirements. This may also be preferable to an outright award of shares in terms of incentive effect and is therefore the recommended course of action.

10. DUCK LTDNotice period

Employment income is subject to income tax and national insurance contributions ('NICs') as normal, throughout the notice period regardless of whether Marion and Bob are working in the office or are on 'garden leave'. Their employment will be treated as continuing until the termination date and the tax treatment will not change even if they receive their pay during the garden leave period as a lump sum.

As the notice period is likely to commence in January 2027, their termination date will probably be in June 2027.

Termination payment

Each element of the termination package will need to be looked at separately to establish the tax treatment. Regard should be had to the employment contract, any negotiations between the parties and the compromise/settlement agreement (once drawn up).

Statutory redundancy pay is exempt from tax and NICs but may have an impact when considering any ex gratia element of the package (see below).

The legal fees of £2,000 are exempt provided the fees are referred to in the settlement agreement and the payment is made directly by Duck Ltd to the employee's solicitor. Note should be made of this when drafting the settlement agreement.

A payment made in respect of a restrictive covenant will be treated as earnings if the following conditions are met:

- The covenant is given in connection with a current, future or past employment;
- It restricts conduct or activities;
- The sum would otherwise not be treated as earnings;
- Earnings from the same employment would be taxable in the UK.

As all the conditions are met in the current circumstances, the payment of £50,000 will be treated as earnings and be fully subject to tax and Class 1 NICs for Bob and Marion.

The remainder of the termination package will be potentially assessable as follows:

- 1) Any element of the termination payment that the employer is contractually obliged to provide is classed as earnings and will be subject to income tax and NICs under PAYE as normal. This includes any accrued holiday pay or bonus payments.

The medical, car and fuel benefit relating to the period up until the termination date would therefore be taxable in the normal way and included on form P11D.

- 2) Any consideration paid on or in anticipation of retirement, will be subject to income tax and NICs under the employer financed unapproved retirement benefit scheme legislation.

To ascertain if these provisions apply, HMRC will seek to establish if the individual has 'retired' (using it's everyday meaning) from his current employment rather than employment as a whole. Legal advice should be taken regarding this point when drafting any settlement agreement. This should be considered for both Marion and Bob but will be more of an issue for Bob due to his age.

- 3) Assuming the ex gratia payment is not regarded as a retirement payment, it will fall within ITEPA 2003, s.401. The first £12,870 (being £30,000 reduced by the statutory redundancy payment of £17,130) is exempt from income tax and NICs. The surplus of £72,760 (£85,630 - £12,870) is subject to income tax and Class 1A NICs. In the case of termination payments however, the Class 1A NICs are accounted for with the tax through PAYE on the 22nd following the end of the tax month in which payment is made.

The transfer of the cars to Marion and Bob would also fall under these provisions. Tax and Class 1A NICs would be calculated based on the market value of the cars at the point of transfer.

Whilst the assumption is that this is a redundancy situation, the termination appears to relate mainly to a disagreement within the management team. It is possible that this termination will be classed as unfair dismissal. Legal advice should therefore be taken.

To the extent the payment is taxable, consideration could be given to re-structuring the payment to ensure that this is tax efficient by using all relevant exemptions. For example, the cash payment could be reduced and instead a contribution made directly into Bob or Marion's registered pension fund.

Payments after redundancy

The medical benefit will continue after the termination date. There are two possible ways in which this will be taxed going forwards depending on whether the employee is treated as having retired or not as per points 2 and 3 above.

If the payment falls under point 3, theoretically, the taxable amount could be reduced by any remaining exemption, although none would be available in the current circumstances. Otherwise, in either case, a tax charge will arise which will need to be reported to HMRC by way of letter. Class 1A national Insurance contributions would also be due.

11. BESTREST HOTELS UK LTD1) UK tax relief in respect of employee's pension contributions

Nikolas will be able to claim tax relief in respect of his contributions to the Rualand scheme, in the same way as if the contributions were to a registered UK pension, but only if:

- the scheme is a qualifying overseas pension scheme ('QOPS'); and
- Nikolas is eligible for migrant member relief ('MMR').

To be a QOPS, the overseas pension scheme to which the contributions are made must be regulated and be recognised in the country in which it is established. It must also satisfy the tax recognition test, which essentially means it is open to residents in the country where it was set up, is registered with the local tax authority and tax relief against personal income tax is given on either, contributions to, or payments from, it.

As the Bestrest Hotels (Rualand) Ltd occupational pension scheme is registered and regulated in Rualand and Nikolas has received tax relief for his contributions, the Rualand pension scheme appears to meet these requirements.

For MMR to apply to Nikolas, he must be a 'relevant migrant member'. This means he must:

- Have joined the overseas scheme at a time when he was not UK resident (UK resident in this context, simply means he has arrived in the UK to live, not necessarily resident for tax purposes)
- Been an existing member of the overseas scheme, having joined before he was UK tax resident and continue to be a member when they are resident in the UK
- Have been entitled to tax relief on contributions to the scheme at any time in the ten years before coming to the UK
- Have been notified by the overseas scheme administrator and received confirmation by them, that information relating to benefit crystallisation events will be sent to HMRC.

For migrant member relief, the relevant migrant member must also meet the following conditions:

- Have UK relevant earnings chargeable to income tax
- Be resident in the UK when the contributions are made
- Have notified the scheme administrator that he intends to claim MMR in the UK.

Nikolas will be resident in the UK for 2026/27 under the statutory residence test as he will spend more than 183 days in the UK. It is possible that 2026/27 will be a split year, but this does not matter as he will only be seeking UK tax relief for the UK part of the year. His salary from Bestrest Hotels UK Ltd means that he will be in receipt of UK relevant earnings.

He therefore meets the conditions for MMR provided he arranges for the scheme administrator to issue the confirmation required by HMRC. Assuming he does this, Nikolas will be able to claim UK tax relief in relation to his continuing contributions to the Rualand pension scheme.

Any employer's contributions will be treated as a tax-free benefit.

2) Corporation Tax Deductions for the Employer's contributions

Employer contributions to an employee's overseas pension scheme are deductible for corporation tax ('CT') purposes in the same way as contributions made to a UK registered pension, provided that the scheme is a QOPS and the employee in question is one who qualifies for MMR.

In the case of Bestrest Hotels UK Ltd, both of these conditions are satisfied (assuming Nikolas deals with the scheme notifications to HMRC) and so a CT deduction will be available for the contributions, as and when made.

Furthermore, if for some reason, the Rualand scheme does not make the necessary confirmations to HMRC, a CT deduction may be available on general principles in that the payment by Bestrest Hotels (UK) Ltd is income in nature and 'wholly and exclusively' for the purposes of the trade. However, in these circumstances, the deduction would only be available when the Rualand pension scheme provides benefits to Nikolas.

3) Annual allowance

The UK rules on the annual allowance apply to pension contributions qualifying for MMR in the same way as they apply to pension contributions to a UK registered pension scheme.

The maximum annual allowance is £60,000 but this is tapered to a lower level for taxpayers with adjusted income over £260,000. As Nikolas's pay is his only income, at £75,000, he has the full £60,000 annual allowance available. His expected level of contribution is £3,750 (5% x £75,000), with an employer contribution at the same level. This is within the available annual allowance and therefore annual allowance charges do not need to be considered.

12. BARBARY LTD1) How Stephanie will be taxed2025/26

In July 2025, Stephanie was granted convertible shares. The grant of those shares was by reason of her employment, making them employment-related securities.

There is a tax charge arising on the share award on 5 July 2025. The taxable amount will have been the market value of the Class B shares less anything that Stephanie paid for them (nil). The future right to convert the shares is ignored as this is contingent on an event which may or may not happen. This produces an amount chargeable to tax as employment income on 5 July 2025 of:

$$2,000 \times \text{£}3.00 = \text{£}6,000$$

Barbary Ltd is unlisted and there is no mention of any arrangements to enable Stephanie to sell her shares. As such the shares will not be regarded as readily convertible assets ('RCAs') provided Barbary Ltd is not controlled by another company.

This means that the tax on the £6,000 will not be recovered through PAYE. Stephanie will have to include this amount in her self-assessment for the year. Also, as the shares are not RCAs, they are not considered to be earnings for Class 1 National Insurance Contribution ('NIC') purposes and so no primary or secondary Class 1 NICs will be due.

2027/28

On 30 November 2027, the Class B shares are converted into the more valuable Class A shares. The contingent event referred to above did happen, so this is a 'chargeable event' and triggers a further income tax charge on Stephanie.

The tax charge is calculated as follows:

		£
Market value of Class A shares immediately after conversion	2,000 x £9.00	18,000
Less: market value of Class B shares immediately before conversion	2,000 x £4.25	(8,500)
Taxable employment income		9,500

As the shares are not RCAs, the amount of taxable employment income is outside PAYE and Stephanie would include this amount in her self-assessment for the year. Class 1 NICs do not apply.

Also, on 30 November 2027, Stephanie acquires an option to acquire a further 500 Class A shares. There is no tax charge arising on the grant of a share option.

2028/29

When Stephanie exercises her share option on 1 July 2028, a tax charge arises on the difference between the market value of the shares on that date and the amount that Stephanie paid for them (the 'exercise price'):

		£
Market value of Class A shares on 1 July 2028	500 @ £11.50	5,750
Less: Exercise price	500 @ £6.20	(3,100)
Taxable employment income		2,650

Once again, as the shares are not RCAs, this amount of taxable employment income would be outside PAYE and Stephanie would include this amount in her self-assessment for the year. Class 1 NICs does not apply.

On the sale of the shares:

When Stephanie comes to sell the shares, any profit will be subject to capital gains tax ('CGT'). The base cost of the shares for CGT will be the total of any amounts paid for the shares plus any amount charged to income tax in respect of their acquisition.

For the shares first acquired in 2025 (and subsequently converted), the CGT base cost is the amount charged to tax as employment income of £6,000 + £9,500 = £15,500.

For the shares acquired in 2028 (pursuant to the exercise of the option), the CGT base cost is the amount paid for the shares plus the amount charged to tax as employment income: £3,100 + £2,650 = £5,750.

2) Reporting obligations for Barbary Ltd

As the shares are not RCAs, this amount of taxable employment income is outside PAYE and so Barbary Ltd does not have to include anything on any RTI submission, nor on Stephanie's Form P11D.

Instead, the reporting requirements in respect of a non-tax advantaged share scheme apply. A non-tax advantaged share scheme is any arrangement, however tightly targeted or short-lived, under which an employer awards employment-related securities or grants options over employment-related securities, to employees.

Barbary Ltd must register online with HMRC that it is operating a non-tax-advantaged share scheme by 6 July following the end of the tax year in which the securities are first awarded, or options first granted.

Barbary Ltd must also submit an annual return by 6 July following the end of the tax year of the award, for that and all subsequent tax years, even if there is that is a nil return. HMRC provide a special template for such returns.

On the assumption that no other share-based remuneration is paid, returns required from Barbary Ltd would provide details of the following events:

Tax year
2025/26	Issue of Class B convertible shares
2026/27	Nil return
2027/28	Conversion of Class B shares into Class A shares and grant of options over further Class A shares
2028/29	Exercise of options granted in Nov 2027

Barbary Ltd must continue to make annual returns showing details of any other share-based remuneration until it notifies HMRC that its non-tax advantaged share 'scheme' has ended. It would have to register afresh if it later made any further share awards or option grants.

If the employer is late in submitting an annual return, there is an automatic penalty of £100. If the return is still outstanding after three months, there is a further penalty of £300. A further penalty of £300 applies for returns that are more than six months late and returns which are more than nine months late can be subject to a penalty of up to £10 per day.

If a return is incorrect as a result of a material inaccuracy due to fraud or negligence, then a penalty of up to £5,000 applies.

13. CANEFERO INDUSTRIES PLC

Reimbursement of travel expenses will not amount to a taxable benefit if it is simply a reimbursement of what would otherwise be a deductible expense in calculating taxable employment income.

Where deductible expenses are reimbursed, no tax consequences arise and no reporting by the employer or employee is required.

Sections 337 and 338 of ITEPA 2003 govern the position in relation to reimbursement of travel expenses. Essentially a deduction will be allowed if the expenses are:

- Necessarily incurred in travelling in the performance of the duties of the employment; or
- Attributable to the employee's necessary attendance at any place in the performance of the duties of employment.

However, this does not extend to the expenses of ordinary commuting, that is, going to and coming from the normal permanent workplace from home.

Looking at each employee in turn:

Stan

Stan's permanent workplace is Leeds. Although he will travel to Hull on a regular basis, he will be doing so for a period of less than two years. As such it is regarded as a 'temporary workplace' and therefore, his travel expenses and subsistence are deductible.

Nishi

Although the placement is expected to exceed twenty-four months, Hull could still be regarded as a temporary workplace if Nishi's time there is less than 40% of her working time. However, because she will be doing two out of four days, this exceeds 40%. Her journey from home to Hull would therefore be classed as ordinary commuting. If she is reimbursed for her travelling expenses as suggested, these would amount to earnings and would be subject to PAYE and Class 1 NICs. Consideration might be given to reducing her time to 40% or less to avoid this.

Jason

Jason's journeys to Hull will be regarded as ordinary commuting, although he could still get reimbursement for costs of driving from the Hull office to his clients. This is even if he just calls in briefly prior to moving onto a client. The consequence of this is that some of his work provided fuel will be used for private purposes. Unless he reimburses all of this, he will therefore suffer a fuel benefit charge, calculated by multiplying £28,200 by the appropriate percentage. The appropriate percentage cannot be calculated without further details of Jason's car. However, it can be up to 37% which is a significant amount, and one which is likely to outweigh the level of reimbursement. The fuel benefit charge is reportable on the P11D and also attracts employer's Class 1A NICs. It would be much more effective for Jason not to be reimbursed for these miles. If however, this is not an option, Canefero Industries plc could consider giving him a cash amount to cover his extra expense which would be subject to PAYE and NICs but, in all likelihood, would be more cost effective.

14. SPORKET ADVERTISING LTD

If Simon Jelani ('SJ') is self-employed, Sporket Advertising Ltd ('SA') has acted correctly in paying him gross, with no deductions for income tax or NICs.

However, if SJ is instead found to be an employee of SA, he should have been, and should continue to be, paid through the PAYE system, with income tax and employee's NICs deducted. SA should also account to HMRC for employer's NIC and any applicable apprenticeship levy .

There are also other liabilities to consider should SJ be considered as an employee, such as providing him with holiday and sick pay, complying with minimum wage requirements and enrolling him in a registered pension scheme.

Definitively establishing SJ's status in relation to SA is therefore essential. When determining employment status, each case must be looked at on its own merits. There are a number of key factors, which need to be considered, as well as all other relevant factors. HMRC looks at the overall picture rather than any particular one factor and although the written contract is seen as a strong starting point, what is happening in practice is also taken into account.

Key factor: Mutuality of obligation

This is an important factor as an employer is under an obligation to provide work for their employee, and likewise an employee is under an obligation to carry out the work assigned to them. Where a worker has the right to decide whether to accept a particular assignment or not, then this is a strong indication of self-employment.

As SJ only gets paid if he there is work for him to do, this would seem to indicate that there is no obligation to provide him with work, which in turn indicates self-employment. However, the reality would need to be considered. If in fact, he has signed up for the entire project, the lack of an obligation to offer him work in the future would not be sufficiently conclusive.

Key factor: Substitution

The ability for a worker to send a substitute is an indicator of self-employment. This is because an employment contract, by contrast, is a personal contract and cannot be assigned. However, simply having a substitution clause in the contract does not automatically give self-employment status if the reality is a substitute is never sent and accepted by the company. On the information provided, it is not clear whether a substitute would be allowed. If not, this would lean towards SJ being an employee.

Key factor: Control

If the worker is an employee, they have less control over what, where and how they carry out their work. There will be a master/servant relationship in relation to the client. Conversely a self-employed person can usually determine when, where and how they will carry out the work.

Based on the information provided, SJ is under the direction of the director in charge of the client account. It is arguable therefore that SJ has little control, which would support the view that he is employed.

Provision of equipment

A self-employed person is usually responsible for providing the necessary equipment to perform the work. SJ uses SA's equipment. This ordinarily indicates employment, although where the focus is on skills, as is the case with a graphic designer, this factor is less important.

Financial risk

The existence of a financial risk for the worker, is an indication that someone is self-employed. If the worker can increase their profit by their own efficiency or if they must put matters right in their own time if work does not meet requirements, these are financial risks just as much as a worker risking their own capital in taking on an engagement.

Here, SJ is paid on an hourly rate and his invoices must be pre-approved. There is no indication that he would not be paid for any remedial work and so it is unclear as to whether there is financial risk or not.

Integration

If SJ would be considered by the outside world as being 'part and parcel' of SA's operation and fully integrated into the workforce, he is more likely to be treated for tax purposes as an employee. Factors such as having a SA email, being provided with administrative support, holding a SA security pass or being invited to staff meetings or functions, are all relevant in determining the level of integration. There is no indication that any of these apply to SJ but this should be checked before reaching a final decision.

Number of paymasters

If a worker has a number of customers, then this is a strong indication of self-employment because no one customer can have exclusivity. This is especially strong if the work is carried out concurrently for different customers. Here SJ does work for other clients. However, it is unlikely to be a strong enough factor on its own to establish that there is no employment, particularly as he only searches for other work when the Company has nothing for him to do.

Conclusion

This is not a clear-cut case and further investigation should be taken as to the written terms of the contract, the level of financial risk, the degree of integration and the right to provide a substitute before any conclusion is made. Unless these clearly support that SJ is self-employed, there would appear to be a strong risk that SJ is in fact an employee.

It is possible to agree the position with HMRC. This would provide SA with certainty and ensure the reporting and withholding is correctly dealt with going forward. If HMRC successfully challenges SJ's self-employment status and re-categorises him as an employee of SA, they will seek to recover the cost of the tax and NICs that should have been deducted under PAYE. This re-categorisation will treat the amount paid to SJ as the equivalent of his take home pay.

HMRC may seek to recover the tax and employee's and employer's NICs from SA as the engager, by way of a contract settlement. If that is not agreed, they will use a Regulation 80 determination.

If it can be established that, as an employer, SA has taken 'reasonable care' to comply with the PAYE regulations, and the failure to deduct was due to an error made in good faith, HMRC may seek to recover amounts due directly from SJ. Again, they could do this by way of a contract settlement or, if that cannot be agreed, by a Regulation 72 determination. A Regulation 72 determination can only be issued if a Regulation 80 determination has not already been made, so they could do this first, regardless of SA's position on reasonable care.

Whoever they seek to recover tax and NICs from, HMRC may also pursue interest and penalties.

15. PHILHARMONIA EVENTS LTD

The general rule is that where an individual works in the UK, no matter how short the period, his earnings are taxable in the UK.

Exemptions from UK tax are however available, if either the UK duties are merely incidental to the performance of overseas duties (which it can be assumed is not the case here) or there is an exemption in a relevant Double Taxation Agreement ('DTA') which applies.

Philharmonia Events Ltd has an economic presence in the UK and therefore, in the absence of any applicable exemption, it would be expected to account for any tax due on earnings through PAYE.

Dieter

Dieter is tax resident in Germany, both under domestic rules and the applicable double tax agreement. Therefore, his earnings will be exempt from UK tax provided:

- he is present in the UK for 183 days or less in any 12-month period commencing or ending in the tax year; and
- his remuneration is not borne by a UK entity or a permanent establishment of the employer in the UK.

On the facts given, Dieter's UK earnings should therefore be exempt from UK income tax under the DTA.

Philharmonia Events Ltd will still have to apply PAYE to Dieter's earnings unless it agrees with HMRC that it can operate an Appendix 4 agreement. Such an agreement is available in respect of Short-Term Business Visitors ('STBVs') who:

- are resident in a country which has a DTA with the UK which includes an employment income article;
- are expected to stay in the UK for a period not exceeding in total 183 days in any 12-month period; and
- are employed by a non-UK resident employer or are legally employed by a UK resident employer, but economically employed by a separate non-resident entity.

Where the employee is present in the UK for less than 60 days and remains on the overseas payroll, the UK business is not treated as the individual's 'economic employer' and therefore any remuneration costs borne by the UK business can be ignored.

Provided that Philharmonia Events Ltd has an Appendix 4 agreement in place and makes such a declaration, it does not need to account for tax under PAYE in respect of Dieter's earnings. However, there are still some reporting requirements. Where the employee works in the UK for between 31 and 60 days, the employer must provide HMRC with a declaration that the employee's days do not form part of a more substantial (longer) period and also to confirm that the employee has no UK employment contract.

Tutorial Note:

An Appendix 4 agreement is an administrative easement to avoid the circle of a UK entity accounting for PAYE and the individual claiming the tax back through self-assessment.

HMRC will allow an Appendix 4 agreement even if the UK entity bears some costs, provided there is an overseas payroll and the individual spends less than 60 days in the UK.

The NIC position is determined by reference to the Protocol on Social Security Co-ordination entered into between the UK and the EU. This protocol aims to ensure that a worker should pay social security systems to one state only. Workers employed in one state and going on a temporary assignment of less than two years to another state as a posted worker, remain within the social security system of their home state.

Dieter's German employer should obtain a certificate of continuing liability (from the relevant German authorities) to confirm that social security contributions will continue to be made in Germany and no UK NICs will be payable.

Alanza

As there is no DTA with Brazil, Alanza (being resident in Brazil) will not benefit from any Treaty exemption; therefore, her earnings from duties performed in the UK will be taxable in the UK. Alanza will not receive a UK personal allowance so any earnings will be fully taxable.

Philharmonia Events Ltd will have to account to HMRC for the tax due on Alanza's earnings under PAYE (assuming Alanza's overseas employer does not do so). To ease administration, it is possible to enter into an Appendix 8 agreement with HMRC to account for the PAYE due on earnings of short term business visitors with less than 60 days in the UK during the year in one annual payment. As Alanza is likely to have fewer than 60 workdays during the one-month summer school, Appendix 8 would be relevant to her.

There is no reciprocal agreement between the UK and Brazil either and therefore Alanza's NIC position is determined by the UK domestic rules. These provide that the first 52 weeks in the UK are exempt from NICs provided the employee is not ordinarily resident or ordinarily employed in the UK, the UK duties are in pursuance of an employment whose main object is fulfilled outside the UK for an employer outside the UK, and presence in the UK is 'for a time', that is, it is not permanent. This will apply to the whole of Alanza's employment with Philharmonia Events Ltd and so there will be no UK NICs to pay.

Virginia

Although Virginia is resident in Kenya and is therefore governed by a DTA, she is employed by a UK employer and therefore cannot benefit from the exemption. As such, any earnings attributable to duties in the UK will be taxable in the UK. She will not receive a UK personal allowance.

As Virginia is coming from a non-reciprocal social security agreement country to work for an employer with a place of business in the UK, she (and the employer) will be liable for Class 1 NICs. There is no 52 week exemption.

An Appendix 8 agreement is not available where NICs are due. Therefore, the PAYE and NICs will need to be accounted for through payroll on a monthly basis in the usual way.

Nasir

Like Dieter's, Nasir's UK earnings should be exempt from UK tax under the UK- France DTA.

Nasir will spend between 60 and 90 days in the UK. In these cases, PAYE can be disregarded under an Appendix 4 Agreement (as described above in relation to Dieter) provided a report is made to HMRC by 31st May following the tax year, identifying each short term business visitor and providing information about them and the assignment in the UK as specified by HMRC, as well as confirming that a UK entity does not ultimately bear the cost of the employee's remuneration or function as the employee's employer during the UK assignment

As is the case with Dieter, the NIC position is determined by the EU SSC Protocol, which provides for an individual employed by a member state on a temporary assignment to the UK, to pay social security contributions only in their home state. Nasir's French employer should apply to the French authorities for a certificate of continuing liability to confirm that social security contributions will continue to be made in France and no UK NICs should be paid.
